Forty-seven Victoria's Secret Angels headed to London for the VS Fashion Show and ET's Kevin Frazier flew in style with the models.

Angels Alessandra Ambrosio and Adriana Lima, both 33, will be hanging up their wings this year, and we were there for Adriana's lingerie fitting in New York before heading across the pond.

"The outfit itself is like a corset dress with details for lace and leather -- like shiny leather and it's something that I love," said Adriana.

Adriana's outfit is just one of 81 that viewers will see on the runway for the Dec. 2 show. The event will also include a return performance by Taylor Swift with Ariana Grande, Ed Sheeran and Hozier also on the bill.

After the fitting it was on to the U.K. via a special Victoria's Secret flight.

"Everywhere you turn there are models," Kevin observed. "That's just how it works on this flight."

Before boarding, Kevin and the Angels took plenty of selfies for the old scrapbook.

"Usually I see you holding a microphone," Adriana told Kevin. "This is the first time I've seen you holding a camera."

Once on the plane, Kevin was tucked in by Alessandra and Adriana.

"You all need to take a nap," Alessandra advised before the six-hour flight. "Here you go," Alessandra said, placing a blindfold over Kevin's eyes.

The tricky part came when they touched down in London and had to get 47 models and their entourage through customs. The ordeal took 90 minutes. After a three-hour break it was time for a spot of tea on the Thames with Lily Aldridge and Karlie Kloss.

One model, Jessica Hart, was noticeably absent from the lineup. Not surprising as she infamously criticized Taylor Swift's performance at last year's fashion show.

"I think she's great, but she didn't fit. I don't know if I should say that," Hart told WWD last year. "I think what you find is that for a lot of us, we've been working for 14, 15 years. What it takes to make it here comes from experience and confidence and knowing how to be confident with yourself. I think it comes with age."

The Victoria's Secret Fashion Show airs Tuesday, Dec. 9 at 10 p.m. EST on CBS.
